

LOCAL AUTHOR GOES NATIONAL WITH LIVE RADIO TALK SHOW

(Kansas City) Acclaimed local author Nick Sacco will be debuting a national internet radio talk show beginning Sunday evening March 6th, 2011 from 8-9pm (CST).

Sacco is considered to be one of the foremost experts on animal rescue, and with his new book "In Heaven Kittens Play" hot off the presses, the new show will fit right into his future plans. Sacco says; "the topic of our debut show will be animal shelters, the difference between kill and no-kill shelters and how people can tell the difference. There's a myth out there that all animal shelters are the same and I want to blow the lid off of the misconception. For example, one of Kansas City's largest and best-known animal shelters is, to the surprise of most, a kill shelter!"

The weekly "Live" talk show will take place on www.blogtalkradio.com on Sunday evenings between 8 and 9pm and will feature guest appearances. The public will be able to call in to ask questions and join in on the discussion at (619) 639-4612. If all goes as expected, Sacco will be at the forefront of animal rescue discussions on a worldwide stage. "This is just the first of many shows planned for the future and I think it's a great way to get the word out and to showcase some of the shelters that are doing some really good things," Sacco explained.

For more information on Nick, his new book and other media, simply logon to his website at: www.nicksacco.com Nick is available for on-air interviews for radio and TV and is available for interviews in print during normal business hours.

A portion of the proceeds from book sales will benefit area animal rescue shelters.
